It will deploy nearly $400 billion over the coming decade to slash carbon emissions. By lowering the cost of clean energy technologies, the law can accelerate their deployment not only at home but abroad.” (IMF, 12/22) “The new law includes about $370 billion over 10 years to expand the use of electric vehicles, jump-start renewable energy such as solar and wind power, and develop newer energy sources like clean hydrogen. It is the largest investment in climate-change solutions in United States history, and it is expected to help cut emissions about 40 percent below 2005 levels by the end of this decade.” (New York Times, 08/22/22) “If Trump retakes the White House, he has vowed to repeal the Inflation Reduction Act, a key pillar of Biden's legacy that promised to inject more than a trillion dollars into green energy investments and incentives alongside bills. About one-third of the money is earmarked for tax breaks for things like clean energy manufacturing, electric vehicles and home upgrades. Trump has called them ‘meaningless green new scam ideas,’ as he and Vance frame climate spending as a wedge issue in this election campaign, saying it will come at the expense of jobs and Americans' hard-earned money.” (CBC, 08/26/24)
