VIDEO: Speaker Mike Johnson: “We Need Derrick Anderson To Be Sent To Congress.” JOHNSON: “Hi, Speaker Mike Johnson here. I just want to weigh in on Virginia's 7 th District race. We need Derrick Anderson to be sent to Congress. We've learned something over the last four years – We need more governing conservatives here. We need thoughtful people who are principled and will come here and do the work to save this country. And Derek is exactly that kind of guy. You know, he's the first person in his family to graduate from college – he and I have that in common – but he was also a Special Forces Green Beret. He also clerked for two federal judges, and he worked in the Trump administration to stop the flow of illegal fentanyl coming over the southern border. He's exactly the kind of thoughtful leader that will represent Virginia well in Congress. We certainly hope that you'll get behind him. Thanks for doing that. Donate any amount you can. I promise you, Derek and I will be great stewards of that. We, together, are going to save this country. God bless you.” Derrick Anderson, Twitter, [6/17/24] (Audio)

VIDEO: Speaker Mike Johnson: “We Need Derrick Anderson To Be Sent To Congress.” JOHNSON: “Hi, Speaker Mike Johnson here. I just want to weigh in on Virginia's 7 th District race. We need Derrick Anderson to be sent to Congress. We've learned something over the last four years – We need more governing conservatives here. We need thoughtful people who are principled and will come here and do the work to save this country. And Derek is exactly that kind of guy. You know, he's the first person in his family to graduate from college – he and I have that in common – but he was also a Special Forces Green Beret. He also clerked for two federal judges, and he worked in the Trump administration to stop the flow of illegal fentanyl coming over the southern border. He's exactly the kind of thoughtful leader that will represent Virginia well in Congress. We certainly hope that you'll get behind him. Thanks for doing that. Donate any amount you can. I promise you, Derek and I will be great stewards of that. We, together, are going to save this country. God bless you.” Derrick Anderson, Twitter, [6/17/24] (Audio)

I’ve never, never, ever run for office, never held office before. So I look at this from a different lens. I look at this more like the constituents of the seventh congressional district do. And one thing that what I’m seeing is that the Democrats are using this January 6th committee as essentially a cover up for all of the failed policies of the Biden administration, Democrats. You know, you mentioned, Larry, I do have a legal background, right. So I’m a constitutional conservative. I’m pro-life, pro-Second Amendment. I’m a build the wall conservative. At the end of the day, when we’re having a trial, right. And you have a prosecution on one side and you have a defense on another side. Prosecutors get to give their case in chief and the defense gets to give their case. Right now, we’re only seeing the prosecution side. And it’s really, really bad when you’re seeing facts being left out in this committee or edited. And it’s really not doing, I believe that the American public are seeing through this, especially, you know, when they had that first meeting the other day, it was a made-for-TV broadcast. I mean, it was truly a made-for-TV broadcast. Literally. And so I think the American public are going to, they’re going to lose credibility in this committee and say, well, this is just a selling point by the Democrats to try to cover up inflation, gas prices, the border, crime, what have you." Wade, a stunning ruling that could alter the nation’s political landscape and leaves states free to drastically reduce or even outlaw a procedure that abortion rights groups said is key to women’s equality and independence. [...] The dissenters also said the majority opinion did not answer important questions, such as whether prohibitions must contain an exception for rape, incest or to save the life of the woman. Under some state laws recently passed in anticipation of Roe being overturned, ‘a woman will have to bear her rapist’s child or a young girl her father’s — no matter if doing so will destroy her life. So too, after today’s ruling, some States may compel women to carry to term a fetus with severe physical anomalies,’ they</li></ul>

Wade, which for nearly 50 years protected the federal Constitutional right to abortion, the Supreme Court gave states total leeway to restrict abortion or prohibit it all together. Almost half the states are likely to enact new laws as restrictive as possible or seek to enforce current, unconstitutional laws prohibiting abortion. We are seeing states divide into abortion deserts, where it is illegal to access care, and abortion havens, where care continues to be available. Millions of people living in abortion deserts, mainly in the South and Midwest, are forced to travel to receive legal care, which results in many people simply being unable to access abortion for a variety of financial and logistical reasons.” [Center For Reproductive Rights, accessed 6/29/22]</li><li>● 22 States Had Laws To “Outlaw Abortion In All Or Most Cases” Immediately Following The Overturn Of Roe. “The Supreme Court has overturned Roe v. Wade, wiping out the constitutional right to an abortion in the US. Roughly 33 million child-bearing women are set to lose access to the procedure in their home states. The majority opinion voted to uphold Mississippi’s ban on abortion after 15 weeks of pregnancy, with the court ruling 5-4 to explicitly overturn Roe. That leaves it up to states to determine their own abortion laws. At least 22 US states already have laws on the books that will now outlaw abortion in all or most cases, with four others indicating they are likely to move in a similar direction. Sixteen states and the District of Columbia protect the right to the procedure.” [Bloomberg, 6/24/22]</li></ul> June 2022: Anderson: “My Life Story Is Pro-Life, &amp; That’s How I’ll Serve.” “My life story is pro-life, &amp; that’s how I’ll serve. We need Derrick Anderson to be sent to Congress. We’ve learned something over the last four years – We need more governing conservatives here. We need thoughtful people who are principled and will come here and do the work to save this country. And Derek is exactly that kind of guy. You know, he’s the first person in his family to graduate from college – he and I have that in common – but he was also a Special Forces Green Beret. He also clerked for two federal judges, and he worked in the Trump administration to stop the flow of illegal fentanyl coming over the southern border. He’s exactly the kind of thoughtful leader that will represent Virginia well in Congress. We certainly hope that you’ll get behind him. Thanks for doing that. Donate any amount you can. I promise you, Derek and I will be great stewards of that. We, together, are going to save this country. God bless you.” Derrick Anderson, Twitter, [6/17/24] (Audio)

From the moment of conception, every human being possesses inherent dignity and worth. ... Abortion and euthanasia are not health care.” Littered throughout the 900-page Project 2025 mandate is the repeated declaration that life begins at conception — an idea also known as fetal personhood. Fetal personhood insists that, from the moment of conception, a fertilized egg is a person, endowed with the same rights as you and I. That claim strikes at the heart of everything I’ve listed above. Laws that establish fetal personhood, laws that mandate doctors to treat fetuses even when the pregnant person’s life is at risk — in practice, those laws are abortion bans. Full stop. Official state committees examining pregnancy-related deaths concluded that both were preventable. Georgia law says a physician can go to prison for performing an abortion after six weeks of pregnancy. The law does have an exception to prevent the death of a pregnant woman, but physicians say there’s no guidance on how to interpret that. [...] The Maternal Mortality Review Committee reviewed this case and they agreed that it was preventable, and they said that the largest impact was the delay in receiving a D&amp;C procedure. They said that there was a good chance, if doctors had done it sooner, that her life could have been saved. [...] A lot of lawmakers that have passed these abortion bans, and not just Georgia’s, have promised that they have exceptions for the life of the mother or medical emergencies, but they’re written in ways that experts say are confusing and not rooted in science. They threaten prison time if a prosecutor decides that they’re not followed correctly. And doctors have told me that this type of threat, it can really change the dynamics of how they interact with patients. In fact, we have reported a lot of in-depth stories about this kind of delay in care where doctors have explained exactly how it changed the way that they were treating patients.” [PBS, 9/18/24]

Its goal is to shift agencies’ focus from protecting our health and environment to paving more pathways for unchecked corporate abuse. Notably, the plan recommends gutting the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). On day one, it would downsize staff at a time when the agency is already severely understaffed and under-resourced. This has led to, for example, absurdly long reviews of chemicals that threaten our water, air, and health. In other cases, the EPA has rubber-stamped potentially dangerous chemicals to speed up corporations’ path to profits. Project 2025 wants this trend to continue, as it advocates for speeding up reviews ‘to ensure the competitiveness of U.S. manufacturers’ — putting companies before public health. It also aims to strip our waters of protections from polluters. Project 2025 would exclude much of our country’s wetlands and temporary waters from protection and narrow the kinds of water pollution regulated under the Clean Water Act. As communities across the country suffer pollution from factory farms and industrial plants, we need more water protections, not fewer. Moreover, Project 2025 would have a new administration pause and revisit Biden’s recent Lead and Copper Rule Improvement and PFAS regulations, which are vital first steps in responding to our country’s lead-in-water and PFAS contamination crises. This would put the health of millions of people at continued risk. It specifically targets a recent Biden rule that designates two PFAS as ‘hazardous substances’ under CERCLA, jeopardizing efforts to force polluters to clean up their toxic mess. Project 2025 could allow corporations to get away with poisoning our water, and leave taxpayers to foot the bill.” (Food &amp; Water Watch, 07/24/24)

		“America's Drinking Water Could Radically Change Under Trump” (Newsweek, 06/23/24) “A second Donald Trump presidency would represent a serious threat to dealing with the toxic impact of PFAS ‘forever chemicals’, as well as other toxins, and could be a danger to the health of millions of Americans, experts and environmental campaigners warn. For example, over the last year, the Environmental Protection Agency developed groundbreaking drinking water limits for highly toxic PFAS compounds, and designated several of the ‘forever chemicals’ as hazardous substances, a move that will force industry to clean up its pollution. The steps represent a major win for the water quality and taxpayers, but a new Trump administration would likely shred the rules. Statements from former Trump EPA officials, the far-right Project 2025 plan, and the Trump-allied American Chemistry Council (ACC) target those rules, but also suggest industry and a second administration’s aims are much deeper. They are proposing administrative changes designed to cripple the EPA’s ability to protect public health from chemicals like PFAS.” (Guardian, 07/28/24) ... I just want to weigh in on Virginia’s 7 th District race. We need Derrick Anderson to be sent to Congress. We’ve learned something over the last four years – We need more governing conservatives here. We need thoughtful people who are principled and will come here and do the work to save this country. And Derek is exactly that kind of guy. You know, he’s the first person in his family to graduate from college – he and I have that in common – but he was also a Special Forces Green Beret. He also clerked for two federal judges, and he worked in the Trump administration to stop the flow of illegal fentanyl coming over the southern border. He’s exactly the kind of thoughtful leader that will represent Virginia well in Congress. We certainly hope that you’ll get behind him. Thanks for doing that. Donate any amount you can. I promise you, Derek and I will be great stewards of that. We, together, are going to save this country. God bless you.” [Derrick Anderson, Twitter, 6/17/24] (Audio) December 2023: Speaker Johnson Endorsed Anderson’s Campaign For Virginia’s 7th Congressional District. “Thank you to @SpeakerJohnson for endorsing our campaign for Congress. In fact, his disastrous policies on the border, economy, and crime have made our lives much worse. It’s time for strong leadership - Donald
