

LCVVF24-MT01-D02a

Shoot Concept – Highest Bidder - Negative

Duration: 30s

Visual	TOS	VO	Backup
Auctioneer at a podium, a projector screen is behind him, with Zinke's portrait on it.	Ryan Zinke Corrupt Politician 18 Federal Investigations	(Auctioneer voice) Today, we have a real gem. A uniquely corrupt politician offering his services for sale.	Ryan Zinke, “by the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December” of 2018, “was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” “A foundation run by Zinke’s wife entered into an arrangement with the president of Halliburton, a company that did a great deal of business with the department, to build a brewery on land that the foundation owned in Montana. By the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December, Zinke was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” (Nation, 06/07/22) Salt Lake Tribune op-ed: Ryan Zinke is “maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet.” Salt Lake Tribune op-ed by Tom Scocca: “Or Montana, where Ryan Zinke, maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet, won a seat in Congress.” (Salt Lake Tribune, 11/14/22) Fellow Montana Republican Dr. Al Olszewski has called Ryan Zinke “one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.” Ryan Zinke’s “opponents from both sides of the aisle don’t intend to let voters forget the rest. Republican

			candidate Dr. Al Olszewski has called Zinke ‘one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” (Daily Beast, 04/11/19) Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” (MailOnline, 11/01/18) Rachel Maddow: Ryan Zinke was “investigated for corruption” and federal investigators found enough “to be substantive” and it was considered “serious enough” and was “referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution.” Rachel Maddow: “Also, Trump’s Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke investigated for corruption. The result of the investigation was that it was found to be substantive and serious enough it was referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution. Trump’s Justice Department declined to prosecute Secretary Zinke.” (MSNBC THE RACHEL MADDOW SHOW, 03/03/21) Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana”
--	--	--	--

			Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana” (Western News, 11/01/22) Western News Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke [...] It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana,” as he “lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only bothered to show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.” Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke just because he has a ‘R ‘after his name. It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana - AND that we would even entertain his candidacy [...] He lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only bothered to
--	--	--	--

			show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.” (Western News, 11/01/22) Charleston Gazette-Mail: Trump named “the remarkably corrupt” Ryan Zinke, “a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department.” From a Harrop op-ed: “It turned out that, on the contrary, Trump very much liked the idea. He got to work on it in his first month as president. And he named Ryan Zinke, a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department. The remarkably corrupt Zinke had to resign. Trump now wants Zinke’s No. 2, David Bernhardt, to take over Interior and continue the mission.” (Charleston Gazette-Mail, 04/10/19)
Auctioneer at a podium, a projector screen is behind him, with Zinke’s portrait on it.	Ryan Zinke	Ryan Zinke has a long history of using his office for personal gain.	Ryan Zinke, “by the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December” of 2018, “was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” “A foundation run by Zinke’s wife entered into an arrangement with the president of Halliburton, a company that did a great deal of business with the department, to build a brewery on land that the foundation owned in Montana. By the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December, Zinke was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” (Nation, 06/07/22)

			“Federal Investigators” said Ryan Zinke “misused his office and lied,” misusing “his position” as Secretary of the Interior “to advance a commercial development project that included a microbrewery in his Montana hometown and lied to an agency ethics official about his involvement.” “Ryan Zinke, Trump's Interior secretary, misused his office and lied, investigators say [...] Trump administration Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke misused his position to advance a commercial development project that included a microbrewery in his Montana hometown and lied to an agency ethics official about his involvement, according to a report by federal investigators released Wednesday [...] Grijalva said the findings show that Zinke used his office to advance his personal interests and attempted to use the peace park to ‘force inclusion of a brewery’ in the development.” (Associated Press, 02/16/22) Federal investigators also found that Ryan Zinke “violated a policy prohibiting nongovernment employees from being transported on the government’s dime in government vehicles “after his wife traveled with him.” “The investigation into the land deal was one of numerous investigations of Zinke that began when he was in Trump’s Cabinet. In another case, investigators found that he violated a policy prohibiting nongovernment employees from riding in government
--	--	--	--

			cars after his wife traveled with him, but he said ethics officials approved it. Zinke was cleared of wrongdoing following a complaint that he redrew the boundaries of a national monument in Utah to benefit a state lawmaker and political ally.” (Associated Press, 02/16/22) 2017: Ryan Zinke Chartered A $12,375 Private Jet To Travel Between Nevada And Montana, So That He Could Give A Speech To A Hockey Team Owned By One Of His Biggest Campaign Donors. Zinke Could Have Spent Only $300 To Fly Commercial, But Instead, Chartered The $12k Private Jet Owned By An Oil Executive, As He “Would Have Missed The Hockey Team Dinner.” “Like Trump, Zinke opened what was to be a policy speech with a defense of his actions. On the day of his $12,000 flight, Zinke said, he was in Nevada for department business and was due to attend a meeting the next day in Montana of the Western Governors Assn. He could have taken a less-expensive commercial flight between those two events, but he would have missed the hockey team dinner. The team is owned by Bill Foley, one of Zinke’s most generous political donors. Trump has not commented on Zinke’s or Pruitt’s travel. In brief remarks Sunday he seemed to excuse Mnuchin’s actions, which included requesting a government plane for his honeymoon in Europe. (The request was canceled before the trip.) Even then, the president took pains to distance himself from Price.” [Los Angeles Times, 9/30/17]
--	--	--	---

			“The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman. Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke’s spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke’s past congressional campaigns. ‘Claims that the Secretary’s full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,’ the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. ‘It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.’” [Denver Post, 10/3/17] “The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman. Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke’s spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for
--	--	--	---

			the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke's past congressional campaigns. 'Claims that the Secretary's full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,' the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. 'It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.'" [Denver Post, 10/3/17] "Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, 'Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.' A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call." [Washington Post, 9/28/17]
--	--	--	--

			“Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, ‘Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.’ A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call.” [Washington Post, 9/28/17]
(Checking his notes.)	Ryan Zinke Sold out our farmers and ranchers	And selling out Montana’s farmers and ranchers.	Ryan Zinke, In 2015, Voted To Remove Country Of Origin Labeling Requirements For Beef, Which Caused “Cattle Markets” To Crash “By Nearly Half, Resulting In Billions Of Dollars Lost To Ranchers In Rural States” Including Montana. According to a press release from the Representative Ryan Zinke, Today Montana agriculture leaders applauded Congressman Ryan Zinke for voting in favor of repealing mandatory country of origin labeling (COOL) for agriculture products by voting YES on H.R. 2393, the

			Country of Origin Labeling Amendments Act of 2015. The measure passed with overwhelming bipartisan support by a vote of 300-131. Montana Stockgrowers, Wool Growers and Pork Producers applauded Zinke’s vote. COOL regulations were implemented on beef, pork and lamb in 2002; however earlier this year the World Trade Organization ruled in favor of a Canadian complaint that the U.S. labeling law was in violation of WTO code. This prompted the House of Representatives to act in order to prevent retaliatory tariffs against U.S. producers. Under H.R. 2393, producers are still allowed to label their meat as made in the U.S.A., however it is not required. ‘I’ve listened to Montana farmers and ranchers, and it’s clear: Maintaining strong trade relationships with our top trade partner Canada, and our other allies, is critical to the success of Montana’s entire agriculture community,’ said Rep. Zinke. ‘In Montana we export more agriculture goods globally than every other industry combined. Repealing COOL regulations while still allowing beef, pork and lamb producers to maintain “Made in the U.S.A.” labels will return certainty to our agriculture industry and allow Montana farmers, ranchers and related trades to compete globally for years to come.’” [Representative Ryan Zinke, Press Release, 6/11/15] According to an op-ed in the Ravalli Republic by Gilles Stockton, President of the Montana Cattlemen’s Association, “When we look at the five candidates currently running to represent us in Congress we find a
--	--	--	--

			mixed bag. As mentioned above, Representative Rosendale could be sponsoring the American Beef Labeling Act, but isn't. Ryan Zinke was in Congress in 2015 and actually voted to remove beef and pork from the labeling requirements. He has not repudiated that vote." [Ravalli Republic, Op-Ed, 10/1/22] According to an op-ed in the Ravalli Republic by Gilles Stockton, President of the Montana Cattlemen's Association, "A new poll conducted on behalf of the Coalition for a Prosperous America (CPA) finds that 86% of Americans favor reinstatement of Country-of-Origin Labeling (COOL) for beef and pork. In 2015 Congress rescinded the requirement that imported beef and pork be labeled. However, it was only for beef and pork. All other foods, including lamb following this action by Congress cattle markets crashed by nearly half, resulting in billions of dollars lost to ranchers in rural states such as Montana." [Ravalli Republic, Op-Ed, 10/1/22] According to the Northern Plains Resource Council, "Since COOL was repealed nationally in 2015, 14,000 jobs in American meatpacking facilities have been lost. Without COOL, processing meat overseas is cheaper and perpetuates exploitation of workers and the environment. United Food and Commercial Workers – the largest private-industry union representing workers at grocery stores, retailers, meatpackers, and processors – supports restoring mandatory COOL." [Northern Plains Resource Council, 3/1/22]
--	--	--	---

			Charleston Gazette-Mail: Trump named “the remarkably corrupt” Ryan Zinke, “a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department.” From a Harrop op-ed: “It turned out that, on the contrary, Trump very much liked the idea. He got to work on it in his first month as president. And he named Ryan Zinke, a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department. The remarkably corrupt Zinke had to resign. Trump now wants Zinke’s No. 2, David Bernhardt, to take over Interior and continue the mission.” (Charleston Gazette-Mail, 04/10/19)
	Ryan Zinke Corrupt Politician 18 Federal Investigations	The bidding starts at five thousand. Do I hear five-thousand?	Ryan Zinke, “by the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December” of 2018, “was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” “A foundation run by Zinke’s wife entered into an arrangement with the president of Halliburton, a company that did a great deal of business with the department, to build a brewery on land that the foundation owned in Montana. By the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December, Zinke was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” (Nation, 06/07/22) Salt Lake Tribune op-ed: Ryan Zinke is “maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet.” Salt Lake Tribune op-ed by Tom Scocca: “Or Montana, where Ryan Zinke, maybe the most cartoonishly

			corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet, won a seat in Congress.” (Salt Lake Tribune, 11/14/22) Fellow Montana Republican Dr. Al Olszewski has called Ryan Zinke “one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” Ryan Zinke’s “opponents from both sides of the aisle don’t intend to let voters forget the rest. Republican candidate Dr. Al Olszewski has called Zinke ‘one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” (Daily Beast, 04/11/19) Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” (MailOnline, 11/01/18) Rachel Maddow: Ryan Zinke was “investigated for corruption” and federal investigators found enough “to be substantive” and it was considered “serious enough” and was “referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution.” Rachel Maddow: “Also, Trump’s Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke investigated for corruption. The result of the
--	--	--	---

			investigation was that it was found to be substantive and serious enough it was referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution. Trump`s Justice Department declined to prosecute Secretary Zinke.” (MSNBC THE RACHEL MADDOW SHOW, 03/03/21)
A paddle goes up.		The developer down front.
Cut to the Auctioneer. Another paddle goes up.	Ryan Zinke Took $7,500 from a PAC connected to a Chinese company	Can I get seventy-five hundred? Seventy-five hundred from a PAC connected to a Chinese company.	Ryan Zinke, from 2022 to 2024, took in a total of $7,500 from the Syngenta Corp. PAC, a “Chinese-state owned company” that the Department of Defense classified in 2022 “as a Chinese Military Company that operates in the United States.” From 2022 to 2024, Ryan Zinke took in a total of $7,500 from the SYNGENTA CORPORATION EMPLOYEE POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE. (FEC, accessed 09/16/24) “Syngenta AG is a Switzerland based provider of agricultural technologies and chemicals. In 2017, the company was acquired by the China National Chemical Corporation, also known as ChemChina. Syngenta’s political action committee donated a total of $207,000 in 2022 to candidates for the U.S. House of Representatives. $151,000 went to Republicans and $56,000 went to Democrats [...] Kiggans and Zinke each took $2,500 from Syngenta in 2023.” (American Journal News, 03/04/24)

			“ChemChina [CNCC.UL] has won more than enough support from Syngenta shareholders to clinch its $43 billion takeover of the Swiss pesticides and seeds group, the two companies said on Friday. The deal, announced in February 2016, was prompted by China's desire to use Syngenta's portfolio of top-tier chemicals and patent-protected seeds to improve domestic agricultural output. It is China's biggest foreign takeover to date.” (Reuters, 05/05/17) “Attorney General Tim Griffin announced Tuesday he is ordering a Chinese-state owned company to divest its ownership of farmland in Arkansas. Syngenta Seeds, LLC, a company that makes genetically modified corn, wheat, soybeans, vegetable and sunflower seeds, owns about 160 acres of farmland in Craighead County through a subsidiary, Northrup King Seed Co., according to the Attorney General's Office. In May 2017, China National Chemical Corporation, also known as ChemChina, acquired 80.7% of the company's shares according to a Syngenta news release. The company lists its legal addresses in Wilmington, Del., and Basel, Switzerland, according to its federal disclosure, saying "the landowner entity" changed from Switzerland to China in 2017. In 2022 the U.S. Department of Defense listed ChemChina as a Chinese Military Company that operates in the United States.” (Arkansas Democrat-Gazette, 10/18/23)
--	--	--	---

Auctioneer		Eight? Looking at eight. Guess it doesn't take much.
End card with photo of Zinke	Ryan Zinke Sold to the highest bidder Paid for by LCV Victory Fund. www.lcvictoryfund.org . Not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.	Ryan Zinke! Sold to the highest bidder.	Salt Lake Tribune op-ed: Ryan Zinke is “maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet.” Salt Lake Tribune op-ed by Tom Scocca: “Or Montana, where Ryan Zinke, maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet, won a seat in Congress.” (Salt Lake Tribune, 11/14/22) Fellow Montana Republican Dr. Al Olszewski has called Ryan Zinke “one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” Ryan Zinke’s “opponents from both sides of the aisle don’t intend to let voters forget the rest. Republican candidate Dr. Al Olszewski has called Zinke ‘one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” (Daily Beast, 04/11/19) Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” (MailOnline, 11/01/18)

			Rachel Maddow: Ryan Zinke was “investigated for corruption” and federal investigators found enough “to be substantive” and it was considered “serious enough” and was “referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution.” Rachel Maddow: “Also, Trump`s Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke investigated for corruption. The result of the investigation was that it was found to be substantive and serious enough it was referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution. Trump`s Justice Department declined to prosecute Secretary Zinke.” (MSNBC THE RACHEL MADDOW SHOW, 03/03/21) Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana” Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana” (Western News, 11/01/22) Western News Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke [...] It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana,” as he “lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only
--	--	--	---

			bothered to show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.” Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke just because he has a ‘R ‘after his name. It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana - AND that we would even entertain his candidacy [...] He lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only bothered to show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.” (Western News, 11/01/22) Charleston Gazette-Mail: Trump named “the remarkably corrupt” Ryan Zinke, “a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department.” Froma Harrop op-ed: “It turned out that, on the contrary, Trump very much liked the idea. He got to work on it in his first month as president. And he named Ryan Zinke, a zealot
--	--	--	--

			for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department. The remarkably corrupt Zinke had to resign. Trump now wants Zinke's No. 2, David Bernhardt, to take over Interior and continue the mission.” (Charleston Gazette-Mail, 04/10/19) 2017: Ryan Zinke Chartered A $12,375 Private Jet To Travel Between Nevada And Montana, So That He Could Give A Speech To A Hockey Team Owned By One Of His Biggest Campaign Donors. Zinke Could Have Spent Only $300 To Fly Commercial, But Instead, Chartered The $12k Private Jet Owned By An Oil Executive, As He “Would Have Missed The Hockey Team Dinner.” “Like Trump, Zinke opened what was to be a policy speech with a defense of his actions. On the day of his $12,000 flight, Zinke said, he was in Nevada for department business and was due to attend a meeting the next day in Montana of the Western Governors Assn. He could have taken a less-expensive commercial flight between those two events, but he would have missed the hockey team dinner. The team is owned by Bill Foley, one of Zinke's most generous political donors. Trump has not commented on Zinke's or Pruitt's travel. In brief remarks Sunday he seemed to excuse Mnuchin's actions, which included requesting a government plane for his honeymoon in Europe. (The request was canceled before the trip.) Even then, the president took pains to distance himself from Price.” [Los Angeles Times, 9/30/17]
--	--	--	---

			“The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman. Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke’s spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke’s past congressional campaigns. ‘Claims that the Secretary’s full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,’ the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. ‘It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.’” [Denver Post, 10/3/17] “The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman. Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke’s spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a
--	--	--	---

			hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke’s past congressional campaigns. ‘Claims that the Secretary’s full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,’ the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. ‘It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.’” [Denver Post, 10/3/17] “Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, ‘Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.’ A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call.” [Washington Post, 9/28/17]
--	--	--	--

			“Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, ‘Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.’ A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call.” [Washington Post, 9/28/17]
--	--	--	---

LCVVF24-MT01-D02b

Shoot Concept – Highest Bidder - Negative

Duration: 15s

Visual	On-Screen Text	VO	Backup
An auctioneer at a podium. A screen behind him with a photo of Zinke.	Ryan Zinke Corrupt Politician 18 Federal Investigations	(Auctioneer voice) Today, a uniquely corrupt politician, Ryan Zinke, is up for sale.	Ryan Zinke, “by the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December” of 2018, “was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” “A foundation run by Zinke’s wife entered into an arrangement with the president of Halliburton, a company that did a great deal of business with the department, to build a brewery on land that the foundation owned in Montana. By the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December, Zinke was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” (Nation, 06/07/22) Salt Lake Tribune op-ed: Ryan Zinke is “maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet.” Salt Lake Tribune op-ed by Tom Scocca: “Or Montana, where Ryan Zinke, maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet, won a seat in Congress.” (Salt Lake Tribune, 11/14/22) Fellow Montana Republican Dr. Al Olszewski has called Ryan Zinke “one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” Ryan Zinke’s “opponents from both sides of the aisle don’t intend to let voters forget the rest. Republican candidate Dr. Al Olszewski has called Zinke ‘one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” (Daily Beast, 04/11/19) Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules

		over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” (MailOnline, 11/01/18) Rachel Maddow: Ryan Zinke was “investigated for corruption” and federal investigators found enough “to be substantive” and it was considered “serious enough” and was “referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution.” Rachel Maddow: “Also, Trump’s Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke investigated for corruption. The result of the investigation was that it was found to be substantive and serious enough it was referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution. Trump’s Justice Department declined to prosecute Secretary Zinke.” (MSNBC THE RACHEL MADDOW SHOW, 03/03/21) Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana” Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana” (Western News, 11/01/22) Western News Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke [...] It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana,” as he “lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only bothered to
--	--	---

			show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.” Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke just because he has a ‘R ‘after his name. It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana - AND that we would even entertain his candidacy [...] He lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only bothered to show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.” (Western News, 11/01/22) Charleston Gazette-Mail: Trump named “the remarkably corrupt” Ryan Zinke, “a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department.” From a Harrop op-ed: “It turned out that, on the contrary, Trump very much liked the idea. He got to work on it in his first month as president. And he named Ryan Zinke, a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department. The remarkably corrupt Zinke had to resign. Trump now wants Zinke’s No. 2, David Bernhardt, to take over Interior and continue the mission.” (Charleston Gazette-Mail, 04/10/19)
--	--	--	--

	Ryan Zinke Corrupt Politician 18 Federal Investigations	He has repeatedly used his office for personal gain.	Ryan Zinke, “by the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December” of 2018, “was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” “A foundation run by Zinke’s wife entered into an arrangement with the president of Halliburton, a company that did a great deal of business with the department, to build a brewery on land that the foundation owned in Montana. By the time that President Trump fired him in mid-December, Zinke was the target of 18 separate federal investigations.” (Nation, 06/07/22) “Federal Investigators” said Ryan Zinke “misused his office and lied,” misusing “his position” as Secretary of the Interior “to advance a commercial development project that included a microbrewery in his Montana hometown and lied to an agency ethics official about his involvement.” “Ryan Zinke, Trump's Interior secretary, misused his office and lied, investigators say [...] Trump administration Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke misused his position to advance a commercial development project that included a microbrewery in his Montana hometown and lied to an agency ethics official about his involvement, according to a report by federal investigators released Wednesday [...] Grijalva said the findings show that Zinke used his office to advance his personal interests and attempted to use the peace park to ‘force inclusion of a brewery’ in the development.” (Associated Press, 02/16/22) Federal investigators also found that Ryan Zinke “violated a policy prohibiting nongovernment employees from being transported on the government’s dime in government vehicles “after his wife traveled with him.”
--	---	---	--

			“The investigation into the land deal was one of numerous investigations of Zinke that began when he was in Trump’s Cabinet. In another case, investigators found that he violated a policy prohibiting nongovernment employees from riding in government cars after his wife traveled with him, but he said ethics officials approved it. Zinke was cleared of wrongdoing following a complaint that he redrew the boundaries of a national monument in Utah to benefit a state lawmaker and political ally.” (Associated Press, 02/16/22) 2017: Ryan Zinke Chartered A $12,375 Private Jet To Travel Between Nevada And Montana, So That He Could Give A Speech To A Hockey Team Owned By One Of His Biggest Campaign Donors. Zinke Could Have Spent Only $300 To Fly Commercial, But Instead, Chartered The $12k Private Jet Owned By An Oil Executive, As He “Would Have Missed The Hockey Team Dinner.” “Like Trump, Zinke opened what was to be a policy speech with a defense of his actions. On the day of his $12,000 flight, Zinke said, he was in Nevada for department business and was due to attend a meeting the next day in Montana of the Western Governors Assn. He could have taken a less-expensive commercial flight between those two events, but he would have missed the hockey team dinner. The team is owned by Bill Foley, one of Zinke’s most generous political donors. Trump has not commented on Zinke’s or Pruitt’s travel. In brief remarks Sunday he seemed to excuse Mnuchin’s actions, which included requesting a government plane for his honeymoon in Europe. (The request was canceled before the trip.) Even then, the president took pains to distance himself from Price.” [Los Angeles Times, 9/30/17] “The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman.
--	--	--	--

			Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke's spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke's past congressional campaigns. 'Claims that the Secretary's full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,' the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. 'It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.'" [Denver Post, 10/3/17] "The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman. Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke's spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke's past congressional campaigns. 'Claims that the Secretary's full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,' the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. 'It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the
--	--	--	---

			motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.” [Denver Post, 10/3/17] “Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, ‘Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.’ A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call.” [Washington Post, 9/28/17] “Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, ‘Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.’ A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call.” [Washington Post, 9/28/17]
--	--	--	---

A paddle rises in the air.		The bidding starts at sixty-five hundred.
Back to the auctioneer .		Developer down front!
Another paddle rises in the air.	Ryan Zinke: Took $7,500 from a PAC connected to a Chinese company	Seventy-five hundred? A PAC, connected to a Chinese company!	Ryan Zinke, from 2022 to 2024, took in a total of $7,500 from the Syngenta Corp. PAC, a “Chinese-state owned company” that the Department of Defense classified in 2022 “as a Chinese Military Company that operates in the United States.” From 2022 to 2024, Ryan Zinke took in a total of $7,500 from the SYNGENTA CORPORATION EMPLOYEE POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE. (FEC, accessed 09/16/24) “Syngenta AG is a Switzerland based provider of agricultural technologies and chemicals. In 2017, the company was acquired by the China National Chemical Corporation, also known as ChemChina. Syngenta’s political action committee donated a total of $207,000 in 2022 to candidates for the U.S. House of Representatives. $151,000 went to Republicans and $56,000 went to Democrats [...] Kiggans and Zinke each took $2,500 from Syngenta in 2023.” (American Journal News, 03/04/24) “ChemChina [CNCC.UL] has won more than enough support from Syngenta shareholders to clinch its $43 billion takeover of the Swiss pesticides and seeds group, the two companies said on Friday. The deal, announced in February 2016, was prompted by China's desire to use Syngenta's portfolio of top-tier chemicals and patent-protected seeds to improve domestic

			agricultural output. It is China's biggest foreign takeover to date.” (Reuters, 05/05/17) “Attorney General Tim Griffin announced Tuesday he is ordering a Chinese-state owned company to divest its ownership of farmland in Arkansas. Syngenta Seeds, LLC, a company that makes genetically modified corn, wheat, soybeans, vegetable and sunflower seeds, owns about 160 acres of farmland in Craighead County through a subsidiary, Northrup King Seed Co., according to the Attorney General's Office. In May 2017, China National Chemical Corporation, also known as ChemChina, acquired 80.7% of the company's shares according to a Syngenta news release. The company lists its legal addresses in Wilmington, Del., and Basel, Switzerland, according to its federal disclosure, saying "the landowner entity" changed from Switzerland to China in 2017. In 2022 the U.S. Department of Defense listed ChemChina as a Chinese Military Company that operates in the United States.” (Arkansas Democrat-Gazette, 10/18/23)
End card with Zinke photo.	Ryan Zinke: Sold to the highest bidder	Eight? Ryan Zinke: Sold to the highest bidder	Salt Lake Tribune op-ed: Ryan Zinke is “maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet.” Salt Lake Tribune op-ed by Tom Scocca: “Or Montana, where Ryan Zinke, maybe the most cartoonishly corrupt member of Mr. Trump’s entire cabinet, won a seat in Congress.” (Salt Lake Tribune, 11/14/22) Fellow Montana Republican Dr. Al Olszewski has called Ryan Zinke “one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” Ryan Zinke’s “opponents from both sides of the aisle don’t intend to let voters forget the rest. Republican candidate Dr. Al Olszewski

		has called Zinke ‘one of the most corrupt persons in Washington’ and a ‘dishonest man.’” (Daily Beast, 04/11/19) Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” Headline: “Trump fears Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke broke anti-corruption rules over land deal with Haliburton chief who offered his family a brewery” (MailOnline, 11/01/18) Rachel Maddow: Ryan Zinke was “investigated for corruption” and federal investigators found enough “to be substantive” and it was considered “serious enough” and was “referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution.” Rachel Maddow: “Also, Trump’s Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke investigated for corruption. The result of the investigation was that it was found to be substantive and serious enough it was referred to Justice Department for criminal prosecution. Trump’s Justice Department declined to prosecute Secretary Zinke.” (MSNBC THE RACHEL MADDOW SHOW, 03/03/21) Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana” Letter to the Editor headline: “Eureka woman says Zinke is too corrupt for Montana” (Western News, 11/01/22) Western News Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke [...] It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are
--	--	---

too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana,” as he “lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only bothered to show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.”

Letter to the Editor: “We shouldn’t vote for someone as inept and corrupt as Ryan Zinke just because he has a ‘R ‘after his name. It’s only been three years since he resigned from the Interior Department amid a series of ethics scandals and federal investigations — does he think Montanans forget, or that we are too dumb to know? I find it truly audacious that someone with this history of corruption would turn around after being basically fired from Trump’s cabinet and run for office in Montana - AND that we would even entertain his candidacy [...] He lives primarily in Santa Barbara, and has only bothered to show up for 3 out of 17 debates here in Montana, where he’s failed to answer any questions about his corruption. He has zero accomplishments in public service. He cares only about how he can profit off of his position.” (Western News, 11/01/22)

Charleston Gazette-Mail*: Trump named “the remarkably corrupt” Ryan Zinke, “a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department.”

From a Harrop op-ed: “It turned out that, on the contrary, Trump very much liked the idea. He got to work on it in his first month as president. And he named Ryan Zinke, a zealot for privatizing public land, as the head of the Interior Department. The remarkably corrupt Zinke had to resign. Trump now wants Zinke’s

			No. 2, David Bernhardt, to take over Interior and continue the mission.” (Charleston Gazette-Mail, 04/10/19) 2017: Ryan Zinke Chartered A $12,375 Private Jet To Travel Between Nevada And Montana, So That He Could Give A Speech To A Hockey Team Owned By One Of His Biggest Campaign Donors. Zinke Could Have Spent Only $300 To Fly Commercial, But Instead, Chartered The $12k Private Jet Owned By An Oil Executive, As He “Would Have Missed The Hockey Team Dinner.” “Like Trump, Zinke opened what was to be a policy speech with a defense of his actions. On the day of his $12,000 flight, Zinke said, he was in Nevada for department business and was due to attend a meeting the next day in Montana of the Western Governors Assn. He could have taken a less-expensive commercial flight between those two events, but he would have missed the hockey team dinner. The team is owned by Bill Foley, one of Zinke’s most generous political donors. Trump has not commented on Zinke’s or Pruitt’s travel. In brief remarks Sunday he seemed to excuse Mnuchin’s actions, which included requesting a government plane for his honeymoon in Europe. (The request was canceled before the trip.) Even then, the president took pains to distance himself from Price.” [Los Angeles Times, 9/30/17] “The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman. Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke’s spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the
--	--	--	---

			chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke's past congressional campaigns. 'Claims that the Secretary's full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,' the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. 'It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.'" [Denver Post, 10/3/17] "The flight cost taxpayers $12,375, according to an Interior Department spokeswoman. Commercial airlines run daily flights between the two airports and charge as little as $300. Zinke's spokeswoman, Heather Swift, said no commercial flight was available that would have worked with his schedule that night. Zinke appeared at an event held by a major campaign donor, giving a motivational speech at a dinner for the Las Vegas Golden Knights, a hockey team owned by Bill Foley, the chairman of Fidelity National Financial. Employees and PACs associated with the financial services company have given close to $200,000 to Zinke's past congressional campaigns. 'Claims that the Secretary's full schedule required the use of chartered aircraft deserve scrutiny,' the lawmakers wrote in a letter to Kendall last week. 'It appears as though Secretary Zinke and his staff could have taken a commercial flight from Las Vegas to Montana if he did not attend the motivational speech to the hockey team owned by his friend and campaign contributor.'" [Denver Post, 10/3/17] "Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice
--	--	--	--

			president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, ‘Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.’ A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call.”  [Washington Post, 9/28/17] “Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke chartered a flight from Las Vegas to near his home in Montana this summer aboard a plane owned by oil-and-gas executives, internal documents show. [...] Jay Nielson, the executive vice president of Nielson &amp; Associates, an oil-and-gas exploration and production firm, co-owns the plane through a holding company, but he said he was not in control of the plane at the time and that it was chartered through a company called Choice Aviation. He told The Washington Post he was unsure whether Zinke flew on the plane and added, ‘Part of why people charter planes is they like to remain somewhat private.’ A representative at Choice Aviation, who declined to give her name, said she was unsure whether Choice chartered a flight for Zinke, then said the company did not charter the flight. She then ended the call.”  [Washington Post, 9/28/17]
	Paid for by LCV Victory Fund.  www.lcvictoryfund.org  . Not authorized by any candidate or candidate’s committee.		